

ABSTRACT

A method of enhancing the equity of a business entity by issuing a debt instrument to the equity share of the business entity. The debt instrument is secured by the written unconditional promise to pay of the business entity and assets of the business entity. The business pays the principal and the interest, from the debt instrument, to the shareholder of record of the equity share of the business entity.